THE MYSTERY OF THE MISSING PUPPY

It was Saturday morning, and Emma and her younger brother Jack were playing in the backyard. Their little golden puppy, Max, was playing with his favorite red ball.

Max was a very curious dog. He loved running around the garden, smelling flowers, and exploring new places.

Suddenly, Emma went inside to get some water. When she came back, Max was gone!

"Jack! Where is Max?" she asked.

"I don't know! He was playing with his ball a minute ago!" Jack answered.

The children started looking for him. First, they checked behind the trees and under the garden table. Then, they looked inside his little doghouse. But Max wasn't there.

"Look! His red ball is next to the fence!" Jack shouted.

Emma noticed something else. There were small muddy paw prints on the ground. They started near the fence and continued towards the garage.

"Maybe Max went into the garage!" Emma said.

THE MYSTERY OF THE MISSING PUPPY

They carefully opened the garage door. It was dark and full of old boxes, bicycles, and garden tools.

"Max? Are you here?" Jack called.

Suddenly, they heard a strange noise.

"Woof! Woof!"

The sound came from behind a large blue box. Emma moved the box carefully, and there he was!

Max was sitting inside an old basket with a blanket. He looked happy, but a little confused.

"Oh, Max! We were so worried!" Emma said, giving him a big hug.

Then Jack started laughing.

"Look! He found a new bed!"

The children took Max back to the garden. They gave him some water and played with him for the rest of the morning.

But Emma had one question:

"How did he get inside the garage?"

Maybe Max had another little adventure to tell!
